

A note on replication for “Democratic Accountability in Open Economies”

Empirical papers in the QJPS normally go through a rigorous replication process. This paper was not fully replicated due to the extraordinary amount of computer time required for MCMC procedures and due to the virtual impossibility of replicating the results exactly because of their dependence on random numbers. Our Replication Assistant did verify that the programs to setup the data and matrices work as stated, and he initiated the sampling procedure for Models*_97.R. These files worked according to the authors' specifications, but time and disk space constraints precluded verification of all tables and figures.